Green interior design is sometimes called sustainable design. It is about what is good and what is bad for people's health, for the environment and for saving energy. Of course, fashion is a big part of green interior design. But it is not the only thing being focused on. The key words of green interior design are not 'cool', 'modern', 'stylish' and 'now'; but instead 'sustainable', 'recycled', 'non-toxic', 'locally sourced', 'renewable' and 'organic'.

For example, Italian leather couches might be the hot word in style. But a green interior designer cares more about whether the leather is from an organic source, whether the wood is from a sustainably managed forest, whether there was any toxic glues used in making the furniture and what was the carbon output in shipping Italian sofa from Europe to other areas.

Green design is about analyzing all aspects of a building to find ways to save energy and water, to find ways to reduce greenhouse gas emissions, to make the interior free of toxic chemicals and to use materials that are the most environmentally friendly.

Reducing energy bills is a primary aim of green interior design. Saving water is the second aim of green interior design. 'Low VOC', 'zero VOC' and 'VOC free' are new buzz phrases in the green design. From a green design point of view, the main concern is to choose indoor flooring, furniture, paint that are free of chemicals that pollute and make people sick.

21. Green interior design pays great attention to people's health, saving energy and _____.

- A. environmental protection
- B. cool design
- C. unsustainable resources

22. A green interior designer may not choose certain material if it is _____.

- A. sustainable
- B. renewable
- C. toxic

23. The word "cool" in Line 4 means _____.

A. chilly

B. stylish

C. cold

24. The primary aim of green interior design is _____.

A. saving water

B. reducing energy bills

C. low VOC

25. The topic of this passage is about _____.

A. how to decorate homes

B. reducing energy consumption

C. green interior design

26—30 题: 请根据短文内容判断给出的语句是否正确, 正确的写“T”, 错误的写“F”, 并将答案序号写在答题纸上。

It is amazing to note that the Internet is still such a new device, and yet it is one of the fastest and most powerful media tools. But think about it for a moment. On the Internet, a big online company can be run by only two guys in their garage. So it is only reasonable then, that people shopping online would be a little leery of the security levels.

Internet giants such as Microsoft knew consumer confidence was the key to getting virtual(虚拟的) shopping off the ground, and they work hard to make people feel safe to shop online.

Credit card companies, too, quickly saw the potential for online shopping, and have installed things like online shopping insurance for people. If you ever have a problem with your online credit purchases, many credit card companies will happily refund(退还) your money and then set their claws on the company that wronged you. Now that's buying power!

There are other bonuses for online shoppers, of course. No line & shy; ups, for one. No annoying mall shopping carts with broken wheels and kids crying because their parents won't get them what they want.

When shopping online, consumers can sit down, have a coffee, and wear their slippers, not having to worry about their hair or parking, and just clicking through sale after sale.

Comparison shopping couldn't be any easier. And thanks to courier companies(快递公司) getting in on the act, you never need to wait longer than a day or two to get those all important purchases delivered right to your door.

No wonder so many companies are shaking their heads at traditional retailing and instead looking to the "virtual" world to attract online shoppers.

26. The underlined word "leery" in the first paragraph means being very sure.

27. Consumer confidence in online shopping mainly relies on security in shopping.

28. Internet giants, traditional retailers, courier companies and credit card companies have made contributions to the popularity of online shopping.

29. The author thinks of the current online shopping as safe, convenient and fast.

30. Nowadays many companies are trying to cooperate with the online shoppers instead of traditional retailers.
